CubelQ participated to 2009 AIFS - Athens International Forum for Security

Athens, GR, January 19, 2009 - CubelQ Limited, an IT company provider of software solutions and systems for financial, banking and corporate institutions, participated, to 2009 Athens International Forum for Security.

2009 Athens International Forum for Security – AIFS – held on January 15th and 16th at the Hellenic American Union – HAU - Conference Center. The Athens International Forum on Security (AIFS), initiated and organized by the Hellenic American Union, a non-profit institution, is the only independent information security conference in Greece to deliver vendor-neutral expertise to proactive IT professionals.

The conference takes a highly integrated, enterprise-wide approach to security. It aims to provide a fresh, in-depth look into information security technologies, policies, techniques, and best practices. The topics address security issues that interest all parties involved, from front-line IT personnel to policy makers. Target audience includes, therefore, IT support professionals, network and system administrators, IT executives, analysts, engineers, IT auditors, IT project managers, network managers, and CIOs, from all industries. In 2009 the forum attracted more than 200 IT security professionals from banks, financial institutions, enterprises and government agencies and organizations as well as a number of security infrastructure vendors and advisory services organizations.

On the exhibition hall, CubelQ presented a number of leading IT security companies demonstrating products and solutions such as Cryptomathic A/S for authentication, signing, token management, key management and PKI, Promisec Ltd. for clientless end point security and Futurex Inc. for hardware security modules – HSMs – for the electronic transaction security industry.
